Sneak Peak

THE ROAD
BEGINS HERE

Hello Brethren and Friends!

We are proud to present you with our sixth edition of the Sneak Peak newsletter! This is a newsletter that the executive team will send out monthly.

Its primary purpose is to improve the communications across the state. This is a space where all the chapters can advertise events and make announcements. We encourage all the chapters to hold a monthly event that they advertise in this letter. We will spotlight all prior events within this so everyone can see your success! If there is anything special you would like to add just ask and we can see what we can do! Please feel free to give us constructive criticism so we can improve for all of you!

We are proud of all you do and look forward to the future!

Fraternally yours,

The New Hampshire
DeMolay Executive Team

NH DeMolay Leadership Moment #3

NH DeMolay Leadership Moment #3

Welcome to the New Hampshire DeMolay series of leadership moments. This is intended to be a set of monthly (24-part) conversation starters. The primary reference for these discussions is Leadership, Theory and Practice by Peter Northhouse, 8th Edition, 2018, Sage publishing.

The design is that we will use these conversation starters each month to stimulate, at the chapter level, specific discussions about the practice of leadership. We all know that DeMolay is a leadership and service organization, but I feel as Executive Officer that we should stimulate the leadership discussion by providing these topics. I hope this is successful and that you all enjoy it.

What types of power can a leader use?
(Ok talk among your chapter)

(after talking among chapter)

Leadership and Power.

The concept of power is related to leadership because it is part of the influence process. Power is the capacity or potential to influence.

There are six bases of power and they are defined as as such:

Referent power. Based on followers identification and liking for the leader. A teacher who is adored by students has referent power.

Expert power. Based on followers perceptions of the leaders competence. A tour guide who is knowledgeable about a foreign country has expert power.

Legitimate power. Associated with having status or formal job Authority. A judge who administers sentences in the courtroom exhibits legitimate power.

Reward power. Derived from having the capacity to provide rewards to others. A supervisor who compliments employees who work hard is using reward power.

Coercive power. Derived from having the capacity to penalize or punish others. A coach who sits players on the bench for being late to practice is using coercive power.

Information power. Derived from possessing knowledge that others want or need. A boss who has information regarding new criteria to decide employee promotion eligibility has information power.

There are two major kinds of power: Position power and personal power.

Position power is the power a person derives from a particular office or rank in a formal organizational system.

Personal power is the influence capability a leader derives from being seen by a followers as likable and knowledgeable.

Like many things, these aspects of power are not good or bad in themselves. The leader needs to use power appropriately and morally in order to achieve respected success.
